

Everyday family experiences of the financial crisis: getting by in the recent economic recession

Get access >

Sarah Marie Hall

Journal of Economic Geography, Volume 16, Issue 2, March 2016, Pages 305–330,
<https://doi.org/10.1093/jeg/lbv007>

Published: 17 March 2015 Article history ▼

Abstract

Literature within economic geography on the financialisation of everyday life has so far overlooked the role of family. Using data collected from ethnographic research with six families in the UK before and during the recent financial crisis, this article argues the case for using family as a lens through which to conceptualise everyday experiences of recession and finance. The findings highlight interpersonal family relationships, inter- and intra-generationality, gender responsibilities, reciprocity, shared experiences and memories as essential to conceptualising how people get by in times of financial crisis and relate to finance in everyday life. The conclusions outline the key contributions of the article to literatures on geographies of finance and family.

© The Author (2015). Published by Oxford University Press. All rights reserved. For Permissions, please email: journals.permissions@oup.com

JEL: H31 - Household, I30 - General, Z13 - Economic Sociology; Economic Anthropology; Social and Economic Stratification

Issue Section: Articles

You do not currently have access to this article.

Sign in

 Get help with access

Personal account

Institutional access

- Sign in with email/username & password
- Get email alerts
- Save searches
- Purchase content
- Activate your purchase/trial code
- Add your ORCID iD

Sign in >

Register

Sign in through your institution

Sign in through your institution

Sign in with a library card

Sign in with username/password

Recommend to your librarian

Institutional account management

Sign in as administrator

Purchase

Subscription prices and ordering for this journal

Purchasing options for books and journals across Oxford Academic

Short-term Access

To purchase short-term access, please sign in to your personal account above.

Don't already have a personal account? Register

Everyday family experiences of the financial crisis: getting by in the recent economic recession - 24 Hours access

EUR €53.00

GBP £44.00

USD $58.00

Rental

This article is also available for rental through DeepDyve.