

How bad will Brexit really be for the UK?

Gudgin, Graham (2017) How bad will Brexit really be for the UK? LSE Brexit (12 Sep 2017). Website.

Text - Published Version

Download \(543kB\) | Preview

- Publisher

Abstract

Long-term forecasts claiming that leaving the EU with no deal on trade would be economically disastrous undermine the UK's optimal negotiating strategy, writes Graham Gudgin (Policy Exchange). He points out significant flaws in such forecasts and shows why the estimates they table cannot be accepted as accurate. The great majority of the economic forecasts have concluded that Brexit will damage the ...

Item Type: Online resource (Website)

Official URL: <http://blogs.lse.ac.uk/brexit/>

Additional Information: © 2017 The Author(s)

Divisions: LSE

Subjects: J Political Science > JN Political institutions \(Europe\)
J Political Science > JN Political institutions \(Europe\) > JN101 Great Britain
J Political Science > JZ International relations

Date Deposited: 23 Oct 2017 14:13

Last Modified: 16 May 2024 09:13

URI: <http://eprints.lse.ac.uk/id/eprint/84930>

Actions (login required)

View Item

Download Statistics

Downloads

Loading...

Downloads per month over past year

View more statistics

