

FULL TEXT

Download PDF

Top of Article

- Methods
- Results
- Discussion
- Article Information
- References

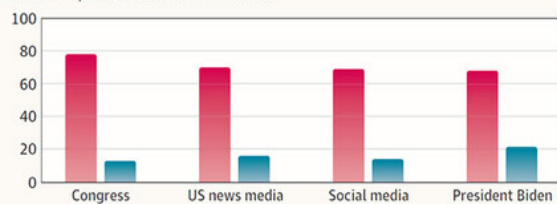

Misinformation is a major problem

The spread of misinformation is a concern for US adults across age, gender, education, and partisanship.

86% of adults say the spread of false and inaccurate information generally is a major problem

74% of adults say the spread of false and inaccurate information about health issues is a major problem

Percent who think the following are not doing enough or doing about the right amount to limit the spread of health misinformation

False Health Claims Abound, but Physicians Are Still the Most Trusted Source for Health Information

Read the article