

KEOGH retirement plans

Mullis, Randy

Lieurance, Eunice

View/Open

 GH3441.pdf \(4.119Mb\)

Date

1983

Format

Document

Metadata

[±] Show full item record

Abstract

"Financial security during retirement is of concern to everyone in today's uncertain economy. Rising prices and unemployment, as well as concern over the Social Security system, are perceived by families as the major contributors to the uncertainty. The question arises, "What can a family do to enhance its financial security prospects during retirement?" Once answer to this question for self-employed families, is to participate in a KEOGH retirement plan. For families not self-employed, the answer is discussed in Home Economics Guide 3442, "Individual Retirement Accounts."--First paragraphs.

URI

<https://hdl.handle.net/10355/71588>

Part of

Home economics guide

GH - Human and Environmental Sciences (University of Missouri--Columbia. Extension).; 3441 (1983)

Rights

Archive version. For the most recent information see extension.missouri.edu.

OpenAccess.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs 3.0 License.

Collections

GH - Human and environmental sciences (MU Extension)

Show Statistical Information
