

The online publications platform for Regional Studies Association members

Home ► Regional Studies ► List of Issues ► Volume 39, Issue 4 ► On the 'economic dividend' of devolution

Regional Studies >

Volume 39, 2005 - Issue 4

1,910 Views

133

CrossRef citations to date

40

Altmetric

Original Articles

On the 'economic dividend' of devolution

Andrés Rodríguez-Pose & Nicholas Gill

Pages 405-420 | Published online: 18 Aug 2010

🗨️ Cite this article 🔗 <https://doi.org/10.1080/00343400500128390>

📖 References

🗨️ Citations

📊 Metrics

📄 Reprints & Permissions

Read this article

🔗 Share

We Care About Your Privacy

We and our 912 partners store and access personal data, like browsing data or unique identifiers, on your device. Selecting I Accept enables tracking technologies to support the purposes shown under we and our partners process data to provide. Selecting Reject All or withdrawing your consent will disable them. If trackers are disabled, some content and ads you see may not be as relevant to you. You can resurface this menu to change your choices or withdraw consent at any time by clicking the Show Purposes link on the bottom of the webpage. Your choices will have effect within our Website. For more details, refer to our Privacy Policy. Here

We and our partners process data to provide:

Use precise geolocation data. Actively scan device

I Accept

Reject All

Show Purpose

Rodríguez-Pose & Gill (2010) On the 'economic dividend' of devolution, Regional Studies, 39(4), 405-420. doi:10.1080/00343400500128390

Studies have shown that devolution has a positive impact on regional economic growth. This is due to the fact that devolution has enabled regions to take control of their own destiny and to make decisions that are in the best interests of their own people. This has led to a number of successful regional development strategies, which have resulted in increased economic growth and employment. The first of these strategies is the creation of a regional development authority. This authority is responsible for the development of the region and for the provision of services to the population. The second strategy is the creation of a regional development fund. This fund is used to finance the development of the region and to provide support to the population. The third strategy is the creation of a regional development council. This council is responsible for the development of the region and for the provision of services to the population. The fourth strategy is the creation of a regional development committee. This committee is responsible for the development of the region and for the provision of services to the population. The fifth strategy is the creation of a regional development board. This board is responsible for the development of the region and for the provision of services to the population. The sixth strategy is the creation of a regional development commission. This commission is responsible for the development of the region and for the provision of services to the population. The seventh strategy is the creation of a regional development corporation. This corporation is responsible for the development of the region and for the provision of services to the population. The eighth strategy is the creation of a regional development trust. This trust is responsible for the development of the region and for the provision of services to the population. The ninth strategy is the creation of a regional development company. This company is responsible for the development of the region and for the provision of services to the population. The tenth strategy is the creation of a regional development partnership. This partnership is responsible for the development of the region and for the provision of services to the population.

Keywords:

Devolution Economic development Efficiency Equity Institutions Economic governance

Décentralisation Développement économique Efficiency Equité Institutions

Gouvernement économique Machtübertragung Wirtschaftliche Entwicklung Leistung Fairness

Institutionen Wirtschaftliche Regierungsgewalt Descentralización Desarrollo económico Eficiencia

Capital patrimonial Instituciones Gobernanza económica JEL classifications: H77, O18, R51, R58

Further reading

People also read

Recommended articles

Cited by

© Informa Group plc

Privacy policy

Cookies

Terms & conditions

Accessibility

Help

Contact us

Registered
5 Howick Place

Taylor & Francis Group
an informa business

