

Qatar's inward and outward investment will likely grow

Oxford Analytica

+ Author & Article Information

Expert Briefings (2018)

<https://doi.org/10.1108/OXAN-DB240239>

Significance

Having largely overcome the economic impact of the regional boycott, Qatar is doubling down on efforts to attract inward investment. At the same time as seeking foreign participation to expand its liquified natural gas (LNG) output, Doha is once again pushing diversification.

Meanwhile, it has restructured the leadership of the Qatar Investment Authority (QIA), its sovereign wealth fund.

Impacts

Major investment opportunities from the QIA will influence geopolitical calculations.

Companies investing in Qatar may risk losing favour in Saudi and the United Arab Emirates (UAE).

Deals for new LNG trains will influence financial investment decisions on other LNG projects internationally.

Keywords: Qatar, ME/NAF, Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, economy, industry, international relations, capital flows, foreign investment, foreign policy, gas, investment, private sector, reform, regulation, sanctions, banking, fiscal, foreign trade, property, Fossil fuels

© Oxford Analytica 2020. All rights reserved. This content contains general information about geopolitical, macroeconomic and social developments or (where stated) other matters. It does not contain advice or recommendations that may be relied on. Where links to external websites are provided, this does not indicate that Oxford Analytica or Emerald agree with, endorse or have checked for accuracy the contents of said sites.

You do not currently have access to this content.

Don't already have an account? Register

Client Account

Email address / Username

Password

Reset password

Register

ICE Member Sign In

Log in

Access through your institution

Purchased this content as a guest? Enter your email address to restore access.

Email Address