Notes

<sup>1</sup>A number of earlier studies have examined the sustainability of budget deficits in Turkey. Akcay et al. (2001) provide evidence questioning budget deficit sustainability while Gunaydin (2003) provides evidence to suggest 'weak' sustainability. Unlike these studies, this article examines budget deficit sustainability allowing for a growing economy by scaling government expenditures and revenues by GNP.

<sup>3</sup>The 'strong' form of sustainability requires (1) the government revenues and expenditures are cointegrated, and (2) the cointegrating parameter equals one (Quintos, 1995; Martin, 2000; Cunado et al., 2004). This is also equivalent to the existence of a stationary process in the budget deficit.

<sup>4</sup>The number of auxiliary regressors in the ADF* tests was chosen using the Akaike information criterion.

Fincidentally, the break in 1983 corresponds to the general elections in which the military marked
