

Home ▶ All Journals ▶ Business History ▶ List of Issues ▶ Volume 53, Issue 4 Madeira embroidery: A failed collective

Business History > Volume 53, 2011 - Issue 4

Views CrossRef citations to date Altmetric

Articles

Madeira embroidery: A failed collective brand (1935-59)

Maria Benedita Almada Câmara 🔀

Pages 583-599 | Published online: 27 Jul 2011

66 Cite this article ▶ https://doi.org/10.1080/00076791.2011.574693

> Sample our Business & Industry Journals >> Sign in here to start your access to the latest two volumes for 14 days

Full Article

Figures & data

References

66 Citations

Metrics

➡ Reprints & Permissions

Read this article

Abstract

The regional cluster of the Madeira embroidery sector in the political context of 1935 to 1959 provides the basis for an analysis of a common strategy aimed at strengthening the business competitiveness of the industry. The strategy was a government initiative aimed at improving the material welfare of workers and based on the creation of a collective brand. The aim of this paper is to show that the mixed corporatist

the strat

transfor

a circle

Q Key corporati About Cookies On This Site

We and our partners use cookies to enhance your website experience, learn how our site is used, offer personalised features, measure the effectiveness of our services, and tailor content and ads to your interests while you navigate on the web or interact with us across devices. You can choose to accept all of these cookies or only essential cookies. To learn more or manage your preferences, click "Settings". For further information about the data we collect from you, please see our Privacy Policy

Acknowledgements

I am very grateful to Teresa da Silva Lopes, Ana Maria Evans, Nuno Madureira, Mark Casson, Mathias Kipping, Peter Scott and Paul Duguid for comments and suggestions on earlier versions of this article. I also want to thank two anonymous referees. An earlier version of this paper was presented at the BHC Annual Meetings in June 2006: Toronto, Ontario (University of Toronto) and in the APHES Annual Meeting, Lisbon, Faculdade de Economia da Universidade Nova de Lisboa November 2007. Thank you also to Francesca Carnivali and Mansel Blackford.

Notes

- A collective brand is concerned with the relationships the definition and enforcement of rules - within a group concerned with quality standards, whereas the main concern of a private brand is the identification of rules to protect an asset (Stanziani, 2007b, p. 236 and see n. 23 below).
- 2. A debate on industrial districts contrasts the embeddedness of a social relations perspective (explained by a cultural disposition among local actors towards trust and cooperation within a closely knit community) with the point of view that sees trust as constructed by governance structures. For the later perspective see Carnivali (2004) and for a critical perspective on this concept drawn from industrial districts in northern Italy in the 1970s and 1980s see Casson (1999, p. 6). For the use of embeddedness in linking trust and economic action in two Italian industrial districts see Gaggio (2006). For English examples from a different perspective see Popp (2001, pp. 5-23) and for a review of the literature see Wilson and Popp (2003). For a review of industrial districts literature see Zeitlin (2008). For the embeddedness concept see also Granovetter (1985).

About Cookies On This Site

We and our partners use cookies to enhance your website 3. In c experience, learn how our site is used, offer personalised precede features, measure the effectiveness of our services, and tailor content and ads to your interests while you navigate on the web or interact with us across devices. You can choose to accept all of these cookies or only essential cookies. To learn more or manage your preferences, click "Settings". For further information about the data we collect Geo from you, please see our Privacy Policy see (create

- 5. Minutes of the Board of Directors, no. 182, 15–05–1939. In 1938, the daily pay for an agricultural worker was 8–10 escudos (Banco de Portugal, Situação Económica da Provincia, 1938). For the corporatist goal of embroidery welfare see Decree-Law no. 25:643, Diário do Governo, 1ª serie, no. 166, 20 July 1935 and n. 9 below.
- 6. Banco de Portugal, Relatório, Balanço (1952); Rodrigues (1955, Vol. 2, p. 136); Sousa (1950, p. 17).
- 7. In 1958, 95% of total production was exported (Indústria, 1958, p. 8).
- 8. For European and Asian (namely Philippines and China) competition to Madeira Embroidery see Diário da Manhã, 22 June 1932 and Banco de Portugal report, Relatório, Balanço (1945 and 1946). In 1924, embroidery from the Philippines was negatively affected by the competition in the US market from European embroidery (Commercial handbook, 1926, p. 45).
- 9. Minutes of the Board of Directors, 23, 19–12–1935; Office letter to the Minister, Minutes of the Board of Directors, no. 161, 10–09–1938; Minutes of the Board of Directors, nos. 168, 16–01–1939; 177, 23–03–1939 and 204, 19–12–1939 and Decree-Law 29:241, Diário do Governo, 1ª serie, no. 284, 8 December 1938. In France, the Petain government also tried to make craft professions compatible with aspirations for improved material circumstances without requiring the rationalisation (increased productivity resulting from mechanisation) of production with a view to eliminating economic and social conflicts (Zdatny, 2004, p. 351).
- 10. The government imposed increased pay rates for embroiderers in outwork against a legislation of the certification system that eliminated industrialists not accredited in 1935 (Minutes of the Board of Directors, no. 118, 18–10–1937).

11. In the eighteenth century. French export quality certification boards ('bureaux de marque' standard analysed About Cookies On This Site

We and our partners use cookies to enhance your website experience, learn how our site is used, offer personalised features, measure the effectiveness of our services, and tailor content and ads to your interests while you navigate on the web or interact with us across devices. You can choose to accept all of these cookies or only essential cookies. To learn more or manage your preferences, click "Settings". For further information about the data we collect from you, please see our Privacy Policy

Accept All to fixed oblem is not settings

Settings

1 to fixed oblem is not oblem.

935; Decree-nutes of the Law no.

Board of

- 13. Decree 25:643, Diário do Governo, 1ª serie, no. 166, 20 July 1935; chapter 1, article 6, c) and h). Registration of designers became compulsory. Many firms were owners or had designs in their possession. If an industrialist used designs registered with the Guild (either the property of a designer or of another company) without due permission, he would also be punished. Firms were in possession of designs because a substantial part of production was ordered by foreign firms. The designs were provided by the foreign firms and local firms, in these cases, simply printed them in different sizes.
- 14. For the attempt to hire a foreign designer see Minutes of the Board of Directors, no. 547, 28–06–1939 and no. 186, 30–06–1949. The Central Government recommended the use of an English company to provide this type of service, 'Embroidery Design Company Limited' (Minutes of the Board of Directors, 13–12–1952).
- 15. Minutes of the Board of Directors, no. 592, 08-05-1950.
- 16. Between 1917 and 1924 there were six firms with head offices in New York. There were two US and one Swiss subsidiary companies in 1938 and one US and one Swiss in 1959. An example of a subsidiary firm was Madeira Embroidery and Co., a branch of Campbell, Chetreger & Jacobson (Commercial Registration. Livros de Registo, 1917–59 and Minutes 1935–59). For firms that left Madeira after 1924 see: Anuário Comercial (1913–59) and also Commercial Registration of Funchal (1914–50).
- 17. Data from the Commercial Registration of Funchal (1914–50).
- 18. Minutes of the Board of Directors, (1936–53).

Simpson

- 19. Banco de Portugal, Relatório, Balanço (1921) and Breve (1921).
- 20. For less developed countries see Ghauri, Lutz, and Tesfom (2003); Ojeda-Gomez, have faced competition from other international commercial norms (Lopes, 2007, pp. 6-7).

- 23. Minutes of the Board of Directors, no. 2, 23–08–1935 and no. 8, 23–09–1935. Recently the Portuguese Institute of Industrial Property approved the registration of denomination of origin/geographical indication number 6, Nice Classification number 6 and the registration of the trade mark with a Mix Sign was given the number 255580 (Boletim de Propriedade Industrial, no. 5, 1985 and no. 5, 1991).
- 24. Traditional embroidery of Portugal [1950s], p. 42.
- 25. All kinds of association trademarks, whether public or private, were protected in Portugal (Ladar, 1930, p. 586). Association with a place of origin is common. The cutlery and tool industry of Sheffield proved to be unique in campaigning for legislation which protected the city as a 'place of origin from the fraudulent use of its name' (Higgins & Tweedale, 1995, p. 17). For the role of national trademarks in establishing competitive advantages for certain industries see Higgins and Mordhorst (2008, p. 186).
- 26. Decree-Law no. 25:643, Diário do Governo, 1ª serie, no. 166, 20 July 1935, preamble. See also Tirole (1996); Winfree and McCluskey (2005).
- 27. For the debate on competition versus collusion see Menard (1996, pp. 176–178) and Raynaud and Valceschini (2005, pp. 165, 195). Organisations managing collective brands have been critically appreciated by economists and economic historians. The analysis of guilds by economic historians is an example of this, but this analysis is being revised. In addition to identifying the origin of products, medieval guilds identified craftsmen until this practice was formally regulated (see Minard, 2003, pp. 119–232, 83–100). Medieval guilds (according to recent studies) and Portugal's

- 30. For commercial interests in the export market of the regulator Companhia do Alto Douro see Duguid and Lopes (1999, pp. 88–89).
- 31. Minutes of the Board of Directors, no. 44 of 14-04-1936; 15-06-1936; no. 139, 26-03-1938; no. 208 18-01-1940 and no. 26, 04-01-1935.

Related research (1)

4 100041011

People also read

Recommended articles

Cited by

British overseas retailing, 1900–60: International firm characteristics, market selections and entry modes >

Nicholas Alexander

Business History

Published online: 27 Jul 2011

Downfall delayed: Danish shipbuilding and industrial dislocation >

René Taudal Poulsen et al.

Business History

Published online: 27 Jul 2011

The decline of the British tyre industry: An evaluation of the policies of the Tyre Industry Sector Working Party >

Tom McGovern

Business History

Published online: 27 Jul 2011

View more

About Cookies On This Site

We and our partners use cookies to enhance your website experience, learn how our site is used, offer personalised features, measure the effectiveness of our services, and tailor content and ads to your interests while you navigate on the web or interact with us across devices. You can choose to accept all of these cookies or only essential cookies. To learn more or manage your preferences, click "Settings". For further information about the data we collect from you, please see our Privacy Policy

Accept All

Essential Onl

Settings

Information for

Authors

R&D professionals

Editors

Librarians

Societies

Opportunities

Reprints and e-prints

Advertising solutions

Accelerated publication

Corporate access solutions

Open access

Overview

Open journals

Open Select

Dove Medical Press

F1000Research

Help and information

Help and contact

Newsroom

All journals

Books

Keep up to date

Register to receive personalised research and resources by email

Copyright © 2024 Informa UK Limited Privacy policy Cookies Terms & conditions

Registered in England & Wales No. 3099067

Registered in England & Wales No. 3099067 5 Howick Place | London | SW1P 1WG

About Cookies On This Site

We and our partners use cookies to enhance your website experience, learn how our site is used, offer personalised features, measure the effectiveness of our services, and tailor content and ads to your interests while you navigate on the web or interact with us across devices. You can choose to accept all of these cookies or only essential cookies. To learn more or manage your preferences, click "Settings". For further information about the data we collect from you, please see our Privacy Policy

Essential Onl

Settings