Abstract

The scale of the cuts to local government finance, coupled with increasing demand for services, has led to unprecedented 'budget gaps' in council budgets. Arguably, two competing narratives of the trajectory of local government have emerged in which contrasting futures are imagined for the sector – a positive story of adaptation and survival and more negative one of residualisation and marginalisation. Drawing on case study evidence from three English local authorities, the paper distinguishes and provides examples of three strategic approaches to managing austerity – efficient

1. This paper reports some of the findings from the Joseph Rowntree Foundation funded project Serving Deprived Communities in a Recession.
2. A Scottish case study is also being conducted as part of the bigger project.
3. These were tackled in the context of a council-sponsored Fairness Commission which aimed to be informed by wider considerations of fairness:

5. A 'roof tax' or infrastructure tariff is levied on developers and is designed to cover towards 75% of the costs of the infrastructure necessary to support development, with the shortfall theoretically made up by central government grants provided in support of growth, including the new grant – the New Homes Bonus.
