

British Journal of Guidance & Counselling >

Volume 36, 2008 - Issue 2

285 | 3
Views | CrossRef citations to date | Altmetric

Original Articles

Counselling Australian baby boomers: examining the loss and grief issues facing aging distance-separated sibling dyads

Myra Frances Taylor , Nadia Clark & Elaine Newton

Pages 189-204 | Received 31 Mar 2007, Published online: 19 Mar 2008

Cite this article <https://doi.org/10.1080/03069880801926442>

Full Article

Figures & data

References

Citations

Metrics

Reprints & Permissions

Read this article

Share

Abstract

It has long been recognised that mature-aged sibling dyads provide each other with emotional support. What has yet to be determined is whether this support function is maintained within the baby boomer generational cohort of sibling dyads who through economic relocation/migration have become separated by distance. As such, this paper highlights the need for research to be conducted into the experiences of baby boomers dealing with sibling loss and grief-related issues without the support of their nuclear and extended family members.

Keywords:

loss

grief

baby boomer

sibling dyads

distance separation

advanced digital technologies

Related research

People also read

Recommended articles

Cited by 3

Information for

Authors

R&D professionals

Editors

Librarians

Societies

Opportunities

Reprints and e-prints

Advertising solutions

Accelerated publication

Corporate access solutions

Open access

Overview

Open journals

Open Select

Dove Medical Press

F1000Research

Help and information

Help and contact

Newsroom

All journals

Books

Keep up to date

Register to receive personalised research and resources
by email

 Sign me up

