

Q

Volume 34, Issue 4 ► A laggard in good times and bad? The lim

Irish Political Studies >

Volume 34, 2019 - Issue 4: Ireland and EU Crisis Governance: Continuity and Change in the Shadow of the Financial Crisis and Brexit

3,080 26 12 Views CrossRef citations to date Altmetric Articles

A laggard in good times and bad? The limited impact of EU membership on Ireland's climate change and environmental policy

Diarmuid Torney \(\sqrt{\omega} \) \(\text{\omega} \) Roderic O'Gorman

Pages 575-594 | Published online: 05 Aug 2019

66 Cite this article https://doi.org/10.1080/07907184.2019.1647174

ABSTRACT

Ireland has remained broadly immune to pressure for convergence resulting from EU membership in the fields of climate and environmental policy. Neither the Global Financial Crisis nor the impending ecological crisis has significantly impacted its status as a 'laggard' country when it comes to implementation of EU legislation and policies in the field of climate change and environment. The reasons suggested for this are similar to those in other EU states where European environmental law has been inadequately implemented: lack of institutional capacity on accession, mismatch between national and supranational regulatory structures, significant veto players, and rapid economic growth. In the field of climate policy, Ireland repeatedly tops lists for worst performance among EU member states, though there has been some success in the field of renewable energy. While Brexit represents a new crisis for both Ireland and the EU, and the UKs departure may well have implications for EU climate policy, we argue that it is unlikely to impact on the approach taken in Ireland. The few recent positive developments in the field of climate policy appear to be driven by increased domestic concerns about the impact of climate change, as opposed to the impact of EU membership.

KEYWORDS:

Climate change	environment	Ireland	UK	Brexit	EU	Europeanisation	crisis governance

Acknowledgements

The authors are grateful to Mary C. Murphy and John O'Brennan for the invitation to contribute to this special issue and for very helpful feedback on earlier drafts. We are also grateful to two anonymous referees for helpful comments. Any remaining errors are our responsibility.

Disclosure statement

No potential conflict of interest was reported by the authors.

Notes on contributors

Dr Diarmuid Torney is an Assistant Professor in the School of Law and Government at Dublin City University. He is also an affiliated researcher of the DCU Brexit Institute and a member of its Steering Committee. His research focuses on comparative and global politics of climate change, environment, and energy, particularly in Ireland, the European Union, China, and India. He was central to the establishment of, and teaches on, DCU's MSc in Climate Change: Policy, Media and Society.

Dr Roderic O'Gorman is an Assistant Professor in the School of Law and Government at Dublin City University. He is also an affiliated researcher of the DCU Brexit Institute. His research focuses primarily on Environmental and Climate Change Law within the EU and the Irish context, as well as the protection of Socio-Economic Rights. He is Chairperson of the Green Party – Comhaontas Glas and an elected member of Fingal County Council.

ORCID

Diarmuid Torney http://orcid.org/0000-0003-4156-9044

Information for

Authors

R&D professionals

Editors

Librarians

Societies

Opportunities

Reprints and e-prints

Advertising solutions

Accelerated publication

Corporate access solutions

Open access

Overview

Open journals

Open Select

Dove Medical Press

F1000Research

Help and information

Help and contact

Newsroom

All journals

Books

Keep up to date

Register to receive personalised research and resources by email

Sign me up

Accessibility

Copyright © 2025 Informa UK Limited Privacy policy Cookies Terms & conditions

Registered in England & Wales No. 01072954 5 Howick Place | London | SW1P 1WG