Acknowledgments

We are indebted to Ernesto Méndez, Sarah Lyon, Franz VanderHoff Boersma, Josefina Aranda, Carmen Morales, Victor Pérezgrovas Garza, Edith Cervantes Trejos, Alma Amalia González Cabañas, and María Elena Martínez Torres who conducted the field research for the cases included in this study. We are also grateful for the helpful comments of Michael Conroy. The comments of the anonymous reviewers and the journal editor added several important sections and points to the paper, and the research assistance of Andrew Heller and Michael Long also strengthened this work. Finally, we wish to acknowledge the generous financial support for this research provided by the Ford Foundation and the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation.

Notes

1. More details on the FTRG, including the complete texts of the final report and individual case studies cited in this article, are available at:
<http://www.ftrg.org>
2. See Méndez et al. (2018) for more detailed discussion.
3. There is a growing body of literature on Fair Trade products and their impact on reliance on local markets. This debate is further explored in the work by the Ford Foundation, the UK, and the World Bank.
4. The paper also discusses the impact of the regime.
5. Michael Conroy is a professor at the School of Forestry.

6. There are many more examples beyond those associated with the case studies in this article, including the Juán Valdez shops due to open in New York and the Oxfam coffee shop initiative in the UK, to name just two. It is likely this phenomenon will continue to grow, in part due to the success of Fair Trade and related campaigns.
