

Q

Home ► All Journals ► Politics & International Relations ► Review of International Political Economy ► List of Issues ► Volume 13, Issue 4 ► The political economy of International A

Review of International Political Economy >

Volume 13, 2006 - Issue 4

6,029 189
Views CrossRef citations to date Altmetric

The Political Economy of Economic (Mis)representation

The political economy of International Accounting Standards

James Perry & Andreas Nölke

Pages 559-586 | Published online: 08 Dec 2006

ABSTRACT

Full Article

➡ Reprints & Permissions

On 1 January 2005, all stock exchange listed companies in the European Union (EU) began using International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) written by the International Accounting Standards Board (IASB). This article argues that the IASB's introduction of fair value accounting reflects and reinforces changed relations of production in which the financial sector increasingly dominates the productive sector, nationally institutionalized economic systems are undermined, and new forms of economic appropriation are validated. As a private body, the IASB has been able to rapidly introduce the fair value paradigm with little public debate outside specialized financial circles. In contrast to more functionalist views, this article argues that accounting standards are inherently political. Accounting numbers provide some of the key economic anchors around which social relations are structured. Accounting techniques cannot be reduced to questions of efficiency since they set out to quantify and compare things which, by their very nature, are neither quantifiable nor directly comparable.

KEYWORDS:

Accounting	International Accounting Standards Board	private authority	capital	financialization
varieties of o	anitalism
varieties of c	apitalishi

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Research leading to this article was funded by the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research (NWO) as part of their 'Shifts in Governance' programme. We would also like to thank three anonymous referees for their comments.

Notes

- 1 The IASB has recently started using the term International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) instead of International Accounting Standards (IAS). To avoid confusion, when referring collectively to all IASB standards currently in force, we use the single term IFRS in this paper. This includes previously issued IAS which are still in force.
- 2 We owe this point to one of three anonymous referees of an earlier version of this article.
- 3 Notwithstanding two temporary 'carve outs' (exemptions) from IAS 39 won by the European banking sector (Grant, 2005). Neither of these exemptions change the finance-productive sector relations with which this part of our analysis is concerned.
- 4 We owe this point to one of three anonymous referees of an earlier version of this article.
- 5 For a more comprehensive historical debate of the advocacy of accounting philosophies by different socio-economic groups in Germany see Richard (2005).

6 The term 'Cambridge Controversies' refers to a long debate between economists in Cambridge, England and Cambridge, Massachusetts from the mid-1950s to the mid-1970s (see Cohen and Harcourt, 2003). Although the dates might imply that the debate was resolved, the recent article by Cohen and Harcourt concludes otherwise.

7 To maintain consistency between accounts it is also expected that equivalent accounting treatment will have to be applied to goodwill generated internally by a corporation (Bromwich, 2004; FT, 2006).

8 The Big Four global accountancy firms are PriceWaterHouseCoopers (PWC), Ernst & Young, Deloitte & Touche, and KPMG.

Related Research Data

Corporate governance and disappointment

Source: Review of International Political Economy

Institutional investors and the reproduction of neoliberalism

Source: Review of International Political Economy

The concept of fair value in French and German accounting regulations from 1673 to 1914 and its consequences for the interpretation of the stages of development of capitalist accounting

Source: Critical Perspectives on Accounting

"Political" Lobbying on Proposed Standards: A Challenge to the IASB

Source: Accounting Horizons

The financialization of the American economy

Source: Socio-Economic Review

Varieties of Capitalism

Source: Unknown Repository

The Retreat of the State

Related research 1

Information for

Authors

R&D professionals

Editors

Librarians

Societies

Opportunities

Reprints and e-prints

Advertising solutions

Accelerated publication

Corporate access solutions

Open access

Overview

Open journals

Open Select

Dove Medical Press

F1000Research

Help and information

Help and contact

Newsroom

All journals

Books

Keep up to date

Register to receive personalised research and resources by email

Sign me up

Accessibility

Copyright © 2025 Informa UK Limited Privacy policy Cookies Terms & conditions

Registered in England & Wales No. 01072954 5 Howick Place | London | SW1P 1WG