

Post-Soviet Affairs >
Volume 34, 2018 - Issue 6264 | 1 | 2
Views CrossRef citations to date Altmetric

Articles

Millionaires and the public in Czech politics

Andrew Roberts

Pages 353-366 | Received 29 Nov 2017, Accepted 19 Apr 2018, Published online: 02 Jul 2018

 Cite this article  <https://doi.org/10.1080/1060586X.2018.1484031> Check for updates

Sample our Politics & International Relations Journals

>> Sign in here to start your access to the latest two volumes for 14 days

 Full Article  Figures & data  References  Citations  Metrics Reprints & Permissions

Read this article

ABSTRACT

This article relies on a unique survey of Czech millionaires and the general public to probe the nature and extent of the differences in opinions between these two groups and their correspondence with public policy. Its main finding is that millionaires are substantially more right-wing than the public on economic issues and somewhat more internationalist on foreign affairs, though a number of areas of agreement can be found as well, particularly assessments of the problems facing the country. Most surprisingly, the opinions of the public appear more likely to correspond with policy than those of

About Cookies On This Site

We and our partners use cookies to enhance your website experience, learn how our site is used, offer personalised features, measure the effectiveness of our services, and tailor content and ads to your interests while you navigate on the web or interact with us across devices. You can choose to accept all of these cookies or only essential cookies. To learn more or manage your preferences, click "Settings". For further information about the data we collect from you, please see our Privacy Policy.

Accept All

Essential Only

Settings

Article >

I wish to thank Jason Seawright, Tim Frye, and anonymous reviewers for helpful comments.

Notes

1. Studies of Europe with similar results include Peters and Ensink (2015) and Giger, Rosset, and Bernauer (2012). But see Bartels (2016) for a case of responsiveness to the less well-off.
2. The communist regime did have elites, but space for the accumulation of capital was very limited. On the privileges of the elite and the so-called “new class” under communism, see Szelenyi (1978).
3. Several of the surveys also included Slovak millionaires, though there were fewer (50–70 versus 150–200 Czech millionaires), and sometimes the parallel survey of the Slovak public is lacking. For these reasons, we did not consider them here. Overall, opinion differences between Slovak millionaires and the public were of a similar magnitude to the Czech Republic.
4. Data are available at Roberts (2018).
5. The survey also asked about support for direct democracy and creating a long-term development plan for the country, which did not fit in these categories. The public was considerably more supportive than millionaires of direct democracy and the development plan elicited similar levels of support.
6. We did not code these items as left or right.
7. Page, Bartels, and Seawright (2013) find the reverse in the United States, where indebted
8. Gilens
9. A
10. gauge of
11. items.

About Cookies On This Site

We and our partners use cookies to enhance your website experience, learn how our site is used, offer personalised features, measure the effectiveness of our services, and tailor content and ads to your interests while you navigate on the web or interact with us across devices. You can choose to accept all of these cookies or only essential cookies. To learn more or manage your preferences, click “Settings”. For further information about the data we collect from you, please see our Privacy Policy.

Accept All

Essential Only

Settings

Additional information

Funding

This work was supported by the Grant Agency of the Czech Republic under the auspices of the project “The Quality of Democracy: The Czech Republic in Comparative Perspective” [GA 15-2274S)].

Related research

People also read	Recommended articles	Cited by 1
Religion and Brexit: populism and the Church of England >
Greg Smith et al. Religion, State and Society Published online: 15 Aug 2018
New political parties through the voters’ eyes >
Alexander Wuttke West European Politics Published online: 13 May 2019
Right-wing populism in a metropolis: Personal financial stress, conservative attitudes, and Rob Ford’s Toronto >
Simon J. Kiss et al. Journal of Urban Affairs Published online: 18 Sep 2019

About Cookies On This Site

We and our partners use cookies to enhance your website experience, learn how our site is used, offer personalised features, measure the effectiveness of our services, and tailor content and ads to your interests while you navigate on the web or interact with us across devices. You can choose to accept all of these cookies or only essential cookies. To learn more or manage your preferences, click “Settings”. For further information about the data we collect from you, please see our Privacy Policy.

Accept All

Essential Only

Settings

Information for

Authors

R&D professionals

Editors

Librarians

Societies

Opportunities

Reprints and e-prints

Advertising solutions

Accelerated publication

Corporate access solutions

Open access

Overview

Open journals

Open Select

Dove Medical Press

F1000Research

Help and information

Help and contact

Newsroom

All journals

Books

Keep up to date

Register to receive personalised research and resources by email

Sign me up

Copyright © 2024 Informa UK Limited Privacy policy Cookies Terms & conditions

Accessibility

Taylor & Francis Group
an informa business

Registered in England & Wales No. 3099067
5 Howick Place | London | SW1P 1WG

About Cookies On This Site

We and our partners use cookies to enhance your website experience, learn how our site is used, offer personalised features, measure the effectiveness of our services, and tailor content and ads to your interests while you navigate on the web or interact with us across devices. You can choose to accept all of these cookies or only essential cookies. To learn more or manage your preferences, click "Settings". For further information about the data we collect from you, please see our Privacy Policy.

Accept All

Essential Only

Settings