An earlier draft of the paper was presented at the IGIDR Conference on Money and Finance in the Indian Economy in February 2005. I would like to thank, without implicating, the seminar participants, and especially, Prof. Benjamin Friedman, Prof. D. M. Nachane, K. Ramachandran, B. Kamaiah, Kaushik Chaudhuri, Golaka Nath and Y. P. Gupta for their incisive comments on an draft. The views expressed and the approach pursued in the paper reflects the personal opinion of the author.

Notes

² This database is increasingly employed in the literature for firm-level analysis on Indian industry. See, for instance, Ghosh and Sensarma (2004) for a recent application of the database on the interlinkage between monetary policy and corporate governance.

³ Industrial sector comprises Manufacturing, Mining and quarrying and Electricity.
