Baby boomer women represented the first large cohort of highly educated young females to break through the glass ceiling to attain high-powered jobs. Higher education shaped their identities and social positions in early adult life through novel career opportunities and enhanced personal financial capacity. However, as the UK began to ascend from its postwar malaise to follow the United States in becoming a more conspicuously consumptive society, a privileged majority of this cohort reverted to traditional expectations. The economic expansion and wealth creation that followed had enabled many to choose to remain stay-at-home mothers during midlife. Following the ongoing global financial crisis, their reemployability is under consideration here.
