Abstract

On 8 November and 6 December 2016, Mark Kritzman, CFA, interviewed Harry M. Markowitz to discuss his background at the University of Chicago, the Cowles Commission, and the RAND Corporation; his many contributions not only to modern portfolio theory but also to other fields; and his views on the 2008 global financial crisis.

Notes

¹ The Cowles Commission for Research in Economics, now called the Cowles Foundation, was founded in 1932 by Alfred Cowles in Colorado Springs, Colorado. The Commission moved to Chicago in 1939 and was affiliated with the University of Chicago until 1955. It is now located at Yale University. Its mission is to support rigorous research in economics and to provide financial support for research, visiting faculty, postdoctoral fellowships, workshops, and graduate students. It publishes a working paper series, a reprint series, and monographs.
