

Local Economy >

Volume 25, 2010 - Issue 5-6: Special Edition: Looking Back on New Labour

77 Views | 24 CrossRef citations to date | 0 Altmetric

Viewpoint

Looking Back in Order to Move Forward: The Politics of Evolving Sub-National Economic Policy Architecture

Lee Pugalis

Pages 397-405 | Published online: 24 Nov 2010

Cite this article

Sample our
Social Sciences
Journals

>> Sign in here to start your access to the latest two volumes for 14 days

Full Article

Figures & data

References

Citations

Metrics

Reprints & Permissions

Read this article

We Care About Your Privacy

We and our 848 partners store and/or access information on a device, such as unique IDs in cookies to process personal data. You may accept or manage your choices by clicking below, including your right to object where legitimate interest is used, or at any time in the privacy policy page. These choices will be signaled to our partners and will not affect browsing data. Privacy Policy

We and our partners process data to provide:

Use precise geolocation data. Actively scan device characteristics for identification. Store and/or access information on a device. Personalised advertising and content, advertising and content measurement, audience research and services development.

List of Partners (vendors)

I Accept

Essential Only

Show Purpose

VIEWPOINT

Looking Back in Order to Move Forward: The Politics of Evolving Sub-National Economic Policy Architecture

LEE PUGALIS

Durham County Council; County Durham Economic Partnership; and School of Architecture, Planning and Landscape, Newcastle University, UK

Introduction

Based on insights ‘in the English field’ over the past decade, I take a brief look back at New Labour’s economic policy architecture as a means to postulate on its reconfiguration under the incumbent Liberal Democrat–Conservative (Lib-Con) Coalition Government. In particular, I reflect on my time devising spatial policy, economic strategies and regeneration programmes at national, regional and local spatial scales, to consider the transition from a New Labour regionalist approach (epitomised by Regional Development Agencies) to a Lib-Con purported localism approach (embodied in the proposed Local Enterprise Partnerships).¹ I conclude by expressing some personal concerns that the dismantling of existing regional economic architecture is akin to throwing the baby out with the bath-water. Alongside this, I contend that in the haste to set-up Local

Notes

¹ A coalition
and Con

democrats

RDAs have received funding through a Single Programme budget (known as the 'single pot') since April 2002.

³ The present sponsor for RDAs is the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS).

⁴ One only has to take a glance at each of the nine RDAs' corporate plans, investment priorities and plethora of strategies, to appreciate that they have an extensive remit, but, arguably of more interest, is each RDAs spatially-flavoured economic development approach. Some have prioritised place quality enhancements and physical regeneration, whilst others have looked to innovation or enterprise, which is reflected in the organisational structures of each RDA, with some opting to utilise local delivery partners more than others.

⁵ At the time of writing in September 2010, it is anticipated that some activities, such as inward investment, innovation and business support, will be 'led' nationally, however, it remains to be seen whether implementation would be led from a single national base.

⁶ The letter is available at:
http://centreforcities.typepad.com/centre_for_cities/2010/06/cablepickles-letter-on-local-enterprise-partnerships.html (accessed 2 July 2010).

⁷ See Pugalis (2009c) for an analysis of the evolving relationship between these tripartite regional bodies.

Log i

> Acc

Lo

> Log

Resto

> Restore content access for purchases made as guest

There are no offers available at the current time.

Related Research

People also read

Recommended articles

Cited by 24

Information for

- Authors
- R&D professionals
- Editors
- Librarians
- Societies

Opportunities

- Reprints and e-prints
- Advertising solutions
- Accelerated publication
- Corporate access solutions

Open access

- Overview
- Open journals
- Open Select
- Dove Medical Press
- F1000Research

Help and information

- Help and contact
- Newsroom
- All journals
- Books

Keep up to date

Register to receive personalised research and resources by email

 Sign me up

✕