

Review of African Political Economy >

Volume 38, 2011 - Issue 128: LAND: A NEW WAVE OF ACCUMULATION BY DISPOSSESSION IN AFRICA?

793 36

Views CrossRef citations to date Altmetric

1

Debates

Who wants to be a millionaire? Nigerian youths and the commodification of kidnapping

Oarhe Osumah & Iro Aghedo

Pages 277-287 | Published online: 21 Jun 2011

Cite this article <https://doi.org/10.1080/03056244.2011.582769>

Sample our Area Studies journals, sign in here to start your access, latest two full volumes FREE to you for 14 days

Full Article

Figures & data

References

Citations

Metrics

Reprints & Permissions

Read this article

Share

We Care About Your Privacy

We and our 913 partners store and access personal data, like browsing data or unique identifiers, on your device. Selecting "I Accept" enables tracking technologies to support the purposes shown under "we and our partners process data to provide," whereas selecting "Reject All" or withdrawing your consent will disable them. If trackers are disabled, some content and ads you see may not be as relevant to you. You can resurface this menu to change your choices or withdraw consent at any time by clicking the ["privacy preferences"] link on the bottom of the webpage [or the floating icon on the bottom-left of the webpage, if applicable]. Your choices will have effect within our Website. For more details, refer to our Privacy Policy. Here

We and our partners process data to provide:

...

I Accept

Reject All

Show Purpose

DEBATE

Who wants to be a millionaire? Nigerian youths and the commodification of kidnapping

Oarhe Osumah<sup>a</sup> and Iro Aghedo<sup>b*</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Department of Public Administration, Ambrose Alli University, Ekpoma, Nigeria;

<sup>b</sup>Department of Political Science and Public Administration, University of Benin, Benin City, Nigeria

Introduction

Kidnapping has become so pervasive in Nigeria that there is now a palpable apprehension among the people who are unsure of whom the next victim will be. The crime has become a veritable commodity in the hands of its perpetrators who apparently have now made a multi-million naira business out of it.

In a number of cases, whilst agents of the state have helped to negotiate with and pay the kidnappers in order to release their victims, there are cases where employees of banks and state security agencies have allegedly colluded with kidnappers (Yun 2007, Adekoye 2009a). Kidnapping is neither historically new nor peculiar to Nigeria. Historically, impunity. Some victims have been released after huge ransom settlements, yet others have been brutalised by kidnappers. Among reasons given for kidnapping are: for ritual sacrifice (Oguseri 2007); economics; and political vendetta.

Our analysis aims to account for this pervasive phenomenon of kidnapping in Nigeria and uncover the reasons for and predispositions to commodified kidnapping in relation to the role of the state in both the emergence and the management of kidnapping. The analysis examines some of the theoretical discussion of youth and restiveness in Africa, the nature of the Nigerian state, the social forces that impel kidnapping and it gives a conclusion.

Conceptual framework

As deployed in this paper, 'commodification' refers to the process of kidnapping as well as actual exchange of forcefully abducted individuals for the pecuniary gain of the perpetrators. Kidnapping is a

Acknowledgements

The author wishes to thank the reviewers for their useful comments.

ers for their

Notes

For more on ritual kidnapping, see Nigerian Tribune (2009, p. 13) and Sanyaolu (2008). (All newspapers and magazines cited are those published in Nigeria, except where otherwise stated.)

Though the motive of this form of kidnap might be to liquidate business rivals, several millions of naira are usually received by the perpetrators.

Several individuals and groups have been implicated on collusion with kidnap gangs including businessmen, traditional rulers and even banks, which are said to leak the account details of their wealthy customers to the criminals (Adekoye 2009a).

For more details, see Abati (2009b) and Okocha and Constance (2009).

Expatriates and nationals of developed countries are particularly targeted for huge ransoms. The Nigerian government often pays promptly to secure the release of this set of victims in order to avoid embarrassment from the international community (Akhaine 2009, Orji 2009).

The retired general was kidnapped from his farm in Edo State and taken through the creeks to Bayelsa State in the volatile Niger Delta region.

This esti × idnapping.

Some people have suggested that we should include Ogbunike, Alkali and Nibo (Anambra State) as well.

Log i

➤ Acc

Log i

> Log in

Restore content access

➤ Restore content access for purchases made as guest

There are no offers available at the current time.

Related Research

People also read

Recommended articles

Cited by 36

Information for

- Authors
- R&D professionals
- Editors
- Librarians
- Societies

Opportunities

- Reprints and e-prints
- Advertising solutions
- Accelerated publication
- Corporate access solutions

Open access

- Overview
- Open journals
- Open Select
- Dove Medical Press
- F1000Research

Help and information

- Help and contact
- Newsroom
- All journals
- Books

Keep up to date

Register to receive personalised research and resources by email

 Sign me up

Copyright © 2024

Accessibility

Registered in England
5 Howick Place

Wiley and John Wiley & Francis Group are part of the John Wiley & Sons Corporation, a public company
trading on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol JWS.

