

47 Views | 1 CrossRef citations to date | 3 Altmetric

Short Articles

Public Policy and Venture Capital: The Canadian Labor-Sponsored Venture Capital Funds

Ayi Ayayi

Pages 335-345 | Published online: 25 Nov 2019

Cite this article

Sample our Economics, Finance, Business & Industry journals, sign in here to start your access, latest two full volumes FREE to you for 14 days

References Citations Metrics Reprints & Permissions

Read this article

Share

We Care About Your Privacy

We and our 880 partners store and access personal data, like browsing data or unique identifiers, on your device. Selecting I Accept enables tracking technologies to support the purposes shown under we and our partners process data to provide. Selecting Reject All or withdrawing your consent will disable them. If trackers are disabled, some content and ads you see may not be as relevant to you. You can resurface this menu to change your choices or withdraw consent at any time by clicking the Show Purposes link on the bottom of the webpage. Your choices will have effect within our Website. For more details, refer to our Privacy Policy. Here

We and our partners process data to provide:

Use precise geolocation data. Actively scan device

I Accept

Reject All

Show Purpose

Public Policy and Venture Capital: The Canadian Labor-Sponsored Venture Capital Funds

by Ayi Ayayi*

Introduction

One of the most significant events of the last two decades in the Canadian venture capital industry was the emergence in the early 1980s under the federal and provincial governments' legislation of labor-sponsored venture capital funds (LSVCFs). This apparently was enacted to address the lack of available venture capital and to promote investment in Canadian small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), whose shares are not traded publicly. Today, there are 44 LSVCFs in Canada, which collectively account for approximately half of the $20.134 billion of assets under management by all Canadian venture capital companies. The funds raised by LSVCFs have to be invested in SMEs with total assets of under $50 million. In addition, while at least 60 percent of funding provided to SMEs has to be in the form of common equity, the rest can be in preferred shares or in unsecured talized by a large number of individual shareholders. Their propensity for investing in LSVCFs is encouraged by the generous provisions of the Canadian federal and provincial tax credits offered in exchange for committing this capital for eight years to inherently risky SMEs. In this respect, the LSVCFs have received heavy subsidization for their startup costs. In addition, LSVCFs' units are registered retirement savings plan (RRSP) eligible, and generous tax credits accrue to the purchaser of the units, without reducing their adjusted cost base. Even if the front-end subsidization and the RRSP eligibility are ignored, the tax credit alone means that these funds are working in the range of 60- and 70-cent dollars, depending on the province in which the fund operates.

The objective of this article is to provide a sound analysis of the distinctive features of LSVCFs in order to examine the effectiveness of their heavy tax subsi-

Addit

Notes c

Log in via your institution

> Access through your institution

Log in to Taylor & Francis Online

> Log in

Restore content access

> Restore content access for purchases made as guest

Purchase options *

Save for later

PDF o

- 48 h
- Artic
- Artic

EUR 4

 Add to cart

Issue

- 3
- 7
- Artic

EUR 1

 Add to
cart

* Local tax

People also read

Recommended articles

Cited by 1

Information for

Authors

R&D professionals

Editors

Librarians

Societies

Opportunities

Reprints and e-prints

Advertising solutions

Accelerated publication

Corporate access solutions

Open access

Overview

Open journals

Open Select

Dove Medical Press

F1000Research

Help and information

Help and contact

Newsroom

All journals

Books

Keep up to date

Register to receive personalised research and resources by email

 Sign up

Copyright

Acc

Registered
5 Howick Pl

or & Francis Group
orma business

